

Challenge Activities

Classification

Challenge

What makes them different?

Seastars, sea cucumbers and sea urchins are all grouped together because of the characteristics they have in common, even though each animal looks very different to the others.

List three things that they all have in common.

Dichotomous keys are used by scientists to correctly identify species. Use the key below to identify three types of Echinoderms found at Reef HQ?

